How Democrats aid Treason.

The Chicago Times is the chief newspaper of the Democracy in the North western States It speaks for and is largely patronized by its party, so that its expressions of opinion and its aims and wishes may be fairly deemed to be those of the Democratic party, as it now exists in that part of the country A recent number contains an article in regard to the President's proclamation of amnesty on certain terms, which is so full of unmitigated treason, that we quote an extract, for the purpose of showing how utterly lost to all sentiments of patriotism, a Northern paper can become, as well as to give proof of the falsity of the statement often made by Democrats that their party does not sympathize with or encourage the rebellion The Times says

> Perhaps the South will consent to these terms If she does, the degradation they offer will not be half as severe as should be inflicted upon a people who could accept that degradation. If she does she is not fit to be in the Union upon terms of equality with other States, or to exercise any political privilege of any name or nature If she does her people should be compelled to change situations with their slaves, and governed only by the overseers in it No true American could propose such degradation to fellow citizens, and the fact that they have been made is proof that their author is either insane with fanaticism or a traitor who glories in his country's shame If the Confederates are not dogs they will free, arm and marshal their slaves for conflict by offering still greater bribes than are offered them by abolitionists, before they will think of submission to the President's terms

Can anything be more treasonable than such words? They will be used of course to hinder rebels from accepting the terms proposed They will be claimed, and not unreasonably, as the statements of Northern Democrats, who advise rebels in arms to make their slaves fight against the Government, and to resist to the last all efforts on the part of the North to subdue and to crush the rebellion They will to some extent encourage continued bloodshed and warfare, and the hope that the allies of secession in the loyal States, may acquire after a time sufficient influence to stop the war and to recognize the independence of the rebel States Such is the real mission of Democracy, openly avowed in the above extract, and covertly intended by all its unprincipled adherents It is a shame, however, that the Times or any other organ of that party should be permitted thus to furnish fuel for the fires of conspiracy and anarchy. What better or more encouraging aid and comfort could be given to the almost distracted Jeff Davis, than just such advice to his rebellious minions as this, which coming as it does from a Northern paper, representing the Democracy, will have ten fold more power and influence than if it originated in their own journals? Yet we are told that Democracy has no sympathy with treason ! What a lie !

WOOLEN FACTORY AT OREGON CITY —We have before alluded to the fact that arrangements have been made with Mr. Harvey for suitable lots and a sufficient supply of water to furnish a company with a site and power for a woolen factory Articles of incorporation have been filed, and nearly thirty thousand dollars of the required capital has been subscribed in Oregon City For the success of the project, as much more must be taken and it is hoped that the citizens of Portland, who have means to invest in an undertaking which can hardly fail to be profitable, and who are disposed to promote the prosperity of their neighbors, will be disposed to help the enterprise liberally Subscription papers have been left with Allen & Lewis, A Holbrook and M S Burrell in this city—either of whom are authorized to receive additional names, in behalf of the corporators It ought not to be forgotten here, that whatever benefits and improves the business of Oregon City, works an advantage to our own citizens and especially ought we to be ready to encourage every movement, which like this tends to develope the abounding resources of Oregon and make the State prosperous, wealthy and independent

COAL IN OREGON —The Yreka Union says a company has been organized in that place for the purpose of working coal mines in the Calapooya Region in this State An agent was sent to examine the lead, who has reported most favorably and sent back specimens which are superior to any coal heretofore found on this coast, and of an admirable quality The vein has been opened to the depth of eight feet and grows wider the deeper it goes We do not know the precise locality of the mines, but presume the reported discovery will soon make it a lively and prosperous neighborhood

NOT ASHAMED TO DO RIGHT —The Yreka Journal says that "several of the old Douglas Democrats who affiliated with the Secesh, will come into the Union party this summer, and the balance are bound for Boise river They are coming to the conclusion that the scare crow of being called "Abolitionist" is about "played out."

SCARCITY OF MEAT IN VICTORIA —The Victoria Chronicle says 'the butchers are at a dead lock for want of fresh meat Beef and mutton are particularly scarce, and the stock of pork is becoming alarmingly less To the failure of the Eliza Anderson in bringing over the usual quantity of live stock, is attributable the scarcity "

"THE SHADOW OF COMING EVENTS ON THE CONFEDERATE STATES" —Under the above heading the London Morning Post of December 16th introduces the letter of the London Times' New York correspondent, referring to the collapsed condition of things in the Southern country The Post remarks

> Every war must come to an end at least every war that has ever been waged terminated early or late in a peace The [illegible] wars in Greece like the siege of Troy each came to an end to the disadvantage, of course, of one of the parties. R[illegible] [illegible] and battle and the 30 years war in Germany and the 20 years war of the French Revolution all the results in their [illegible] Happily the power to destroy in our time tends greatly to [illegible] and few will be sorry if the present war in America affords a desirable illustration Except those deeply interested in its continuance, its speedy cessation would fill the world with gladness When will it cease? [illegible] shadows of coming events [illegible] Richmond [illegible] The Confederates are surrounded by difficulties and the Southern people lack faith in ultimate success The statement is in opposition to all we have previously heard, but we have it now from authentic sources The facts are told in a way to exclude doubt

The Post thinks that the Times' Richmond letter has been obviously written for the purpose of preparing the English mind for coming events ; and it is the first authentic statement from the Confederate States which contrast unfavorably the spirit of the South with the spirit of the North. The age of chivalry has departed from the land of cotton, tobacco and sugar

THE HAZARDS OF WAR —A tabular statement has been published from official records in the office of the Adjutant General of Massachusetts, of the losses in the nine months regiments in service from that State, during their term. From these it appears that in the fifteen regiments and one battery from which the returns have been made the loss by the casualties of battle was less than four fifths of one per cent, that is, seventy seven to a regiment, or between seven and eight to a company The deaths by sickness amount to four and three tenths of one per cent , that is, forty three to a regiment or four and a fraction to a company Of these deaths a portion, say one quarter, would have occurred if the subjects had been at home, and nearly all of them were the result of causes entirely within the control of the men themselves

These figures will strike most people with surprise We have heard so often of regiments "cut to pieces" of whole companies swept away by the terrible fire of the enemy that we have come to think of many of our brave regiments as practically annihilated We see how mistaken we were, and we see, too, that the hazards of the service are very much less than we were accustomed to suppose

WHAT WE ARE FIGHTING FOR —We are fighting for Louisiana, for which we paid, in 1803, the sum of $15,000,000, for Florida, for which Spain charged us $5,000,000 for Texas, which cost us over $40,000,000, for Mexico, which cost us $15,000,000, besides $100,000,000 for the extinguishment of Indian titles, for Arizona, for which we cashed up $10,000,000 Some say we did not pay this money—that the South paid half of it Let us see: From 1791 to 1850, the amount paid into the Federal Treasury from the free States was, less expenses of collecting, $932,222,011; from the slave States, $237,076,354—giving the North an excess of $672,614,41 Figures don't lie What else are we fighting for? For the dignity and unity of the nation—for the supremacy of the Federal, over the heinous doctrines of State Rights — for Republican principles Let the war progress

SPEECH OF A GEORGIA SENATOR —The Hon Herschel V. Johnson, who was on the Presidential ticket with Mr. Douglas, has been re elected a Confederate Senator from Georgia, and made a speech of which a summary is given in a letter to the Richmond Dispatch Among other things he said

> There is no step backward All is now involved in the struggle that is dear to man—home, security liberty, honor, every thing—with the certainty of the most degraded fate that ever oppressed a people if we fail. It is not recorded in history that eight millions of united people, resolved to be free have failed We cannot yield if we would Yield to the Federal authorities never—to vassalage and subjugation! The bleaching bones of one hundred thousand gallant soldiers slain in battle would be clothed in tongues of fire to curse to everlasting infamy the man who whispers yield.

"SOLDIER ARE YOU HUNGRY?" —About eighteen months ago a regiment passed through Baltimore, en route for Washington, and having occasion to halt for a while in one of the streets one of the soldiers was approached by a little fellow, who inquired of him, 'Soldier are you hungry?' The soldier replying in the affirmative, the little boy invited him to his house near by, and set before him a bountiful repast A few weeks since the regiment returned through Baltimore en route home, their term of enlistment having expired, and the soldier who for meritorious service in the field had risen to the rank of Captain, not forgetful of the kindness of his little friend sought him out and presented him with a handsome photographic album, containing photographs of all the most prominent Generals in the Union army Inscribed upon the back of the album, in beautiful gilt letters, were the words, "Soldier are you hungry?" This little boy is the son of a Lutheran minister of that city

THE DUTY OF A TRUE PATRIOT —Towards the close of Lord Macaulay's life on his retiring from political affairs, he addressed the citizens of Glasgow, and in the course of his remarks said 'I reflect with pleasure that I never stooped to the part of a demagogue, and never feared to confront what seemed to me to be an unreasonable clamor I never, in time of distress incited my countrymen to demand of any government, to which I was opposed, miracles—that which I well knew no Government could perform nor did I seek even the redress of grievances, which it was the duty of a government to redress, by any other than strictly peaceful and legal means.'

SHREWD DODGE —Some half dozen prisoners made their escape from Point Lookout, by a dodge that showed up no little ingenuity and nerve Knowing that they would be under less rigid watch in the hospital they determined to palm themselves off for small pox patients To this end they secured a wire heated it, and marked their faces and hands, producing blisters even and thus were suddenly ordered to the hospital as dangerous cases They succeeded subsequently, in eluding the vigilance of the guard who never dreamed of the running away of men lately broken out with the small pox, and made good their escape

After the Battle.

A battle and a furnace are alike. It is wonderful how dull [illegible] brighten and grow costly in the glow [illegible] the sterling worth and wealth there are in them [illegible] and the common man stands transfigured [illegible] his hand and his foot in the real [illegible] grandeur But ah! when the fire is out and the [illegible] earth is heated with rigid clay, the black mouths of the guns speechless mighty hammer and [illegible] hands the flags furled, the wild hurrah [illegible] away and all the splendid action of the [illegible] from the rugged field like a [illegible] you wonder among the [illegible] of the intensest life and [illegible] that swept your soul out, only yesterday [illegible] with the skirmish line, you begin to know what those words mean, "after the battle."

It is days since great waves of [illegible] lash [illegible] against Mission Ridge and swept up and over it in surges—days since I tried to tell you how it all looked so many days that it is even now [illegible] into history and yet I feel like taking up the story just where I left it on Wednesday night at sundown [illegible] the eagle wing and the wild cry of triumph [illegible] the mountain [illegible] the rough valley that but an hour before, parted with the rush and whirl of battle From away beyond the [illegible] indeed three miles out [illegible] Station the dropping [illegible] from Sheridan's guns faintly punctuate the silence [illegible] listen as you will, you can hear no [illegible] but the [illegible] of ambulance wheels, [illegible] rolling in with their mangled burdens, [illegible] to groan, [illegible] but the [illegible] of the Tennessee [illegible] never tell you with what a warm feeling [illegible] the heart I [illegible] up and saw the Federal [illegible] like a new constellation upon Mission Ridge, they were as welcome as dawning day [illegible] that have watched the night out. The old beacon glare from rebel camp and signal light was [illegible] with something thicker than water, and Chattanooga was at peace.

It is strange that a battle almost always lies between two breathings of sleep [illegible] slumber into which men always fall upon [illegible] repose they sink at its end Night fairly held its breath [illegible] the camps, the wing of silence was over them all Then came Thursday morning bright and beautiful I go out to the field and [illegible] [illegible] over and over, after the battle—after [illegible] Many one [illegible] their [illegible] deep abandonment [illegible] his head pillowed upon his folded arm [illegible] his cheek pressed upon a stone, [illegible] his fingers [illegible] his musket [illegible] you pass where a butternut and a true blue have gone down together, the arm of the one flung over the other where a young boy of fifteen lies face upward, both hands clasped over his heart—the [illegible] the frost that whitened his hair, as if he had grown old in a night and [illegible] like tears [illegible] upon his cheeks [illegible] a lieutenant grasps a bush as if he died vainly feeling for a little hold upon earth and life, where a stained [illegible] leads you to a shelter behind a rock and there a dead captain who had crept away out of sight and fallen asleep where rebels and true [illegible] in short windrows as if death had begun the harvest and had wearied of the work And so through the valley and up the ridge in every attitude lie the unburied dead—lie just as they fell in the glow of the battle And those faces are not as you would think, hardly one distorted with any passion almost all white and calm as Ben Adhem's dream of peace; many brightened with something like a smile—a few strangely beautiful. Wounded ones that have escaped the moonlight search have into silently waiting for morning, without murmur or complaint, glad they are alive not grieved they are wounded for 'did we not take the Ridge' they say this did the old soldierly spirit of [illegible] flash up like an expiring candle, and go out right there on the field as he spoke [illegible] died with the last word on his lips, and 'went up higher.'

I said something of taking the backward step and retracing the ground made classic by a thousand deeds of valor. It is a work beyond the narrow range of a writer of letters but while abandoning it to more ambitious hands, I cannot deny myself the privilege of recording two or three incidents Colonel Wiley, of the Forty first Ohio, fell terribly wounded at the first line of rifle pits and General Hazen rode up with the words, 'I hope you are not badly wounded' 'Do you think we'll make it?' asked the Colonel 'I do' was the reply 'That's enough' said the gallant officer, 'I can stand this' and there he lay bleeding and content, and the tide of the battle rolled on

A division General turned abruptly to me in the course of a desultory conversation, with 'If you write anything about Wednesday's affair as you will, don't forget Colonel Miller, of the Thirty sixth Illinois—one of the most gallant little fellows that ever drew a sword ' I did not need that injunction, for Colonel Silas Miller rode through the storm to the summit of the ridge at the head of his regiment like a veteran, inspiring his men till the little Thirty sixth was a phalanx of heroes. Colonel Frank T Sherman of your city, who commanded General Steedman's Brigade displayed a cool courage and clear judgment worthy the name and fame of Illinois In truth all the Colonels on that day were fit to be named with him of continental memory the old fashioned Colonel," who "galloped through the white infernal powder cloud"

Indeed and indeed death loves a shining mark,' and the roll of officers for whom their comrades say to day, 'dead on the field of honor,' will lend a splendor to the story of Mission Ridge forever Clothed be the Sixth Ohio in mourning and glory, that lost thirteen of its seventeen officers Sheridan's Division lost at Stone river, seventy two, at Chickamauga, ninety six, while at Mission Ridge one hundred and twenty two bars single and double leaves, silver and gold and six spread eagles, lay bloody and blent—the total loss in the two divisions of Wood and Sheridan alone being twenty three hundred and forty four

They cried in the white heat of Wednesday afternoon, "The rebels mass their batteries! They converge their fire!" and yet, taking our divisions through and through, the dreadful rain fell as evenly as if it had been shed by the clouds of heaven

Spots all along that rough and terrible mountain are waiting some poet's breath to blossom with flowers immortal Here by this gray rock, lay the soldier, one shoulder shattered like a piece of potter's clay, and thus urged two comrades who had halted to bear him to the rear 'Don't stop for me—I'm of no account—for God's sake, push right up with the boys!'—and on they went and left him weltering in his bloody vestments Do ye talk of your royal purple or Tyrian dyes? Beside that hero lying there, those tints grow dull as gray November Hard by that little oak, Colonel Harker, crowding up the hill, saw two brothers, one wounded unto death The other bending over him The Colonel, not seeing the fallen man ordered the other to move on 'But this is my brother,' he pleadingly said The poor stricken follow on the ground rallied an instant 'Yes that's right, George go on go on ' George turned a piteous look upon his dying brother grasped his musket and clambered on And that was his last farewell, for the summit reached he hastened back, and there beside the little oak the soldier lay so that sleep without a dream Between the first and second ranges of rebel works right in the flush of the charge a Captain fell and two men came to his aid 'Don't wait here, [illegible] said, go back to your company one useless man is enough—don't make it three ' Just then a cheer floated down the mountain as they took the rifle pit 'Don't you hear that?' he cried march!' and away they went Such incidents as these strew all the way from base to crest—happening in an instant lost and forgotten in the whirlwind worthy every one of them of a place in loyal hearts With such a spirit inspiring rank and file—a spirit as lofty as the Alpine traveler breathed whose burden, as he went, was still 'Excelsior'—who can wonder that Mission Ridge was carried in a November afternoon? As I think of it all I seem to have the poet's quickened ear and to me, standing in the valley below from hundred of lips now white, and still a voice flows down the Ridge's side in grand accord

THE SORT OF MEN WHO OPPOSE COERCION —A correspondent of Harper's Weekly tells the following story, which fairly illustrates the opposition of some men to the Government in the exercise of its power to put down rebellion

> Tim [illegible] is here from Boston and dined with me yesterday He says that little Mrs V—— is a tremendous Copperhead because her husband once lived in New Orleans and the other day she went to the [illegible] to her [illegible] What barber was busy a gentleman [illegible] the Government said Tim [illegible] with the [illegible] of an Amasa Parker and the [illegible] There was nothing too vile to [illegible] and [illegible] was too mild a name for the [illegible] and [illegible] Lincoln But above all the [illegible] was the [illegible] to be denounced Who is [illegible] to admit it? Who [illegible] has the [illegible] to coerce sovereign States?
> [illegible] Mrs V—— fairly trembled with delight and [illegible] in the torrent of talk she [illegible]
> 'Excuse me Sir I am unknown to you but [illegible] your just and generous [illegible] to protest against the [illegible] the [illegible] you Sir [illegible] the gallant and [illegible] Southerners whom the Government is wickedly endeavoring to coerce From my heart I thank you'
> The gentleman bowed said that he was very happy that they had so true a sympathy and wished her good morning He went out and the [illegible] the [illegible] Mrs V—— asked with enthusiasm for the name of so patriotic a gentleman
> 'Why [illegible] excuse me do you remember the man who [illegible] a woman and half killed her, some years ago and was sent to the State Prison?'
> 'Yes'
> 'Well [illegible] this is the chap He came back yesterday and he naturally goes against coercion'
> Little Mrs V—— did not tell the story, and Tim [illegible] but the barber did

A NEW RENDERING OF HAMLET —Hon John Cochrane got off the following in a speech at Brooklyn last week Upon yonder lines at Windsor at Windsor Pass Vallandigham and his friend Horatio—I see the friend of Horatio grasping his [illegible] about him to screen him from the northern [illegible] and I also behold Marcellus Wood It is the fence platform of the Canadian line They tread the [illegible] and remind me of that scene conceived in the mind of Shakspeare, composed undoubtedly with reference to the events now transpiring It was the melancholy Hamlet—Vallandigham—his friend Horatio and the officer Marcellus Wood this occurred upon a dreary night, a brief hour upon the [illegible] platform at Elsinore. [Hisses and applause] Hamlet Vallandigham—The air bites shrewdly, it is very cold

Horatio—It is indeed, an unhappy and an eager air

Hamlet—What hour now?

Horatio—Methinks it lacks of twelve.

Marcellus Wood—No it has struck

Horatio—Indeed I heard it not

Heard it not, Horatio! Heard you not Rhode Island one? two Vermont? three Massachusetts? four, New Hampshire five, Maine? six, California? seven Wisconsin? eight, Illinois? nine Pennsylvania? ten, Ohio? eleven Maryland and New York, twelve? [Uproarious applause, which lasted for some time, the audience rising to their feet, and cheering en masse] And there struck the syllable of recorded time If, Horatio, your auricular nerve was left to that it must be the dull, cold ear of death with which you are struck The dead heard it, looked up and wondered at the miracle The living heard it and rejoiced, and our army stood shoulder to shoulder in the front the people were standing shoulder to shoulder in the rear

PROMPT AND PROPER PUNISHMENT —Last evening a Secessionist slightly elevated by libations of his native beverage, entered a cigar store on Montgomery street, and observing a party in United States uniform, commenced an indiscriminate abuse with the most obscene epithets conceivable of Abraham Lincoln and every other damned Abolitionist in the United States The soldier, as in duty bound, took the responsibility of resenting the insult, and by a well directed blow from his right, "mawley" on the "bugle" of Secesh, laid him out on the sidewalk It has become a matter of too common occurrence for the disaffected to sneer at Uncle Sam's uniform, and a few such examples as above may prove salutary—S F Call, January 30th

JUST SO HERE —It is announced that the Richmond papers are very bitter on President Lincoln's Message If they can excel the Copperheads in that regard, they must be wet down with a solution of nutmegs and vinegar and printed with a tincture of wormwood The rebels and their friends at the North have always agreed and harmonized pretty well in regard to the policy of the Government for suppressing the rebellion and we presume they will so continue to the end —Buffalo Express.

The brig Charles Devens, one of the Port Madison Mill Company's vessels, went ashore, in the fog, on Friday night last, near Point no point The company's steamer Resolute endeavored to pull her off but in vain. On examining the vessel it was discovered that the water in her hold had rose to a level with that outside. She has a large cargo of merchandise, most of which it is thought will be lost or greatly damaged —Seattle Gazette

In the Thanksgiving prayer which preceded his sermon, Henry Ward Beecher prayed heartily for the newspapers of the country, which he styled "Monarchs of the Land"

Here is Charles Lamb's opinion of a water cure : " It is neither new or wonderful, for it is as old as the deluge, when, in my opinion, it killed more than it cured "

"UNEASY RESTS THE HEAD THAT WEARS A CROWN."—The eternal-snow crown on the brow of Mount Hood, yesterday had what resembled a feather of giant proportions arising from its summit, and waving gracefully northward in its ascent. Some of the enthusiastic admirers of grand and beautiful spectacles, pronounced it smoke; others, with an eye to present condition of the country, and a critical knowledge of chemistry, declared it vapor, arising from the action of sulphur under the snow. Whatever may have been its nature or condition, it was worth seeing and the fact was worth an item. Even taking that view which attaches to it the most serious importance, it will doubtless all end in smoke.

ROPE AT LAST.—The halliards were successfully taken to the truck of No. 2's flag staff yesterday, by George Washington Max- (in the employ of Leonard & Green,) who accomplished the task with apparent ease, never desiring to sit down for a rest, upon regaining terra firma.

FROM IDAHO.—Several members of the Territorial Legislature of Idaho, just closed, are stopping at the Pioneer, in this city.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.—The writer of the following patriotic pome is respectfully informed that we have no time to correct it so as to make it read pretty, and so we must decline its publication!

[illegible] TO THE SLAVE FROM BONDAGE.

There is but one flag—it's the Stars and the Stripes,
Its colors all as pure as its gems of device,
It's chaste, it is rare in colors so clear,
There is no other on earth can equal its freedom so fair.

It had but one fault—it was a stain of its true,
It was the black man in bondage we must admit to its truth,
With irons and fetters bound round him so tight,
He was torn from his family, his children and wife.

He was sent to the market and there to be sold—
Sent away from his little ones, who around him both fold
As the tears from his cheeks in streamlets roll down
He kisses each dear one in fondness untold
As the pangs in his heart the fatal shaft flies
No more to behold those dear sacred ties.

But the time has now come to wipe out this black stain
When the black man from bondage is released to freedom again.
When the Stars and the Stripes around him will fold,
Abel Lincoln is the man to do this we are told.

May Heaven protect our President Abel Lincoln we say,
Who released us from bondage and tore those fetters away,
May the Stars and the Stripes around him entwine,
We hope he may be elected our next President again.

THE CAMPAIGN OF 1860 GONE OVER AGAIN.—In the Circuit Court yesterday a novel case was on trial. It was a suit brought by R. D. Austin against Alexander Dodge for the sum of $149 20 for "Job Printing," done during the Presidential Campaign of 1860. The case was somewhat interesting from the fact that a number of prominent politicians were examined, and their testimony to some extent gave outsiders a glimpse behind the curtain and partially revealed how finances are raised, campaigns carried on, political papers controlled, etc.

THE PUBLIC SQUARE.—The work of making the rough places smooth on the Public Square progresses finely during the pleasant weather, and it is now expected that in about two weeks the grading will be completed. The deepest cut will be six feet eight inches, and give a commanding view of any improvements thereon from Fourth street. The convicts appear physically well qualified for work of this kind, and if they are to thus appear in public, it is to be hoped that they may be used to the best advantage for both city and State.

MORE PILE DRIVING.—The steamer Marie has been hauled up stream about a block from her old berth, in order to make room for the pile driver. The foundation for a three story addition to the new What Cheer House, is being now constructed on the river front.

THE SPRING HORSE-MARKET HARVEST.—We notice in very many of the stable yards about the city, droves of horses, fresh arrivals from their country winter quarters, intended for shipment or sale on the road to the mining region.

CORRECTION.—We were in error in stating that Dr. Kirchner was called to attend Mr. Schultz, when he fell from No. 2's flag staff. The attending physician, who was employed by the Engine Company, was Dr. C. Elwert. We are happy, in making the correction, to state that Mr. Schultz is now doing finely.

THEATRICAL.—To-night is set for a benefit to Miss Minnie Gillespie, at Willamette Theatre. "All that Glitters is not Gold," and the amusing burlesque of "Metamora," are the pieces selected. Miss Minnie is deserving of a good benefit.

Q. M. STORES.—The steamer John H. Couch yesterday carried to Vancouver the last load of about 125 tons of barley, for the Quartermaster's Department at that Post. The barley came from California on the bark Samuel Merritt.

A Word to Married People.

The ringing of the door bell has a pleasant sound to me, especially in my idle moods. Like an unopened letter, there is a mystery about it, and one waits with a pleasurable excitement to see who or what is calling.

Returning home one day earlier than usual, I found my wife had gone out and while lounging idly over the paper the door bell rang.

I waited expectant till Bridget appeared with a note containing a request from my old friend, Dr. Stearns, to ride out to his residence in the country, the next day, to transact some business that had long been pending and an invitation to bring my wife and spend the day. I was pleased; first because I wanted the business completed; and secondly because I needed a day's recreation.

But the next morning everthing seemed to go wrong. Alice could not accompany me, and I could not get off as early as I wished, and consequently I was peevish and fretful; and Alice reflected my humor I suppose—as it appeared to me she had never been so unamiable.

At length, however, I drove away, though not in a very pleasant mood. It was a lovely October day; and as I rode along, noting the brilliant tints of the landscape, memory went back to the golden autumn when I wooed and won my bride.

"How lovely was Alice, then!" thought I, "and how happy we were! But that was long ago. Yet nature is the same, though we are changed. Let me see: we have been married three years; is it possible it is no longer?"

And I felt a pang as I contrasted the past with the present, to think we could have settled down into the common-place life we now lead.

We had no serious trouble, we didn't quarrel; though when I felt cross, or other things didn't go to suit me, I took no pains to conceal it, and often spoke harshly to Alice, who sometimes replied in the same spirit, sometimes with tears. Yet we were generally good friends. But the charm, the tenderness of early love, had imperceptibly vanished.

I had become careless about my appearance at home, and Alice was equally negligent. Her beautiful brown hair, which she used to ar in the most becoming curls, was now ly brushed back behind her ears, unless was going out or expecting company. I ssed the subject with a sigh at the doc s gate, with the reflection that it was the with all married people—must be so, in how could romance and sentiment o among so many prosy realities? al we were as happy as anybody; s not the kind of life I had looked o with so many bright anticipations. ctor came out and greeted me cordi the hall we met Mrs. Stearns, look lovely in her pink muslin wrap etty hair in tasteful braids. So the love which at some period, the most precious fe, and which needs so much care it unimpaired, is generally neglected. y friend, it is the little acts—trifles so often estrange loving hearts. I have ys made it a point to treat my wife with same courtesy that characterized my de ment in the days of courtship; and, while m careful not to offend her tastes and little judices, I am sure that mine will be re ected."

That night, as I rode homeward, pondering the doctor's words and reviewing the years of our married life, I was surprised at my own blindness, and determined to recall the early dream, if possible.

The next morning at breakfast I astonished Alice by a careful toilet, chatted over the dinner, and after tea invited her to ride. When she came down in my favorite grande, with her hair in shining curls, I thought she had never looked lovelier.

I exerted myself, as of old, to entertain her, and was surprised to find how quickly the evening passed.

I resolved to test the doctor's theory perfectly, and the result exceeded my most sanguine expectations.

For all the little nameless attentions so gratifying to a woman's heart, and so universally accorded by the lover, and neglected by the husband, I find myself repaid a thousand fold; and I would advise all who are sighing over the non-fulfilment of early dreams, to go and do likewise, remembering, that, that which is worth winning, is worth keeping.

Shoulder Straps at a Discount.—The Army Correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial, writing from the Army of the Cumberland under a recent date, related the following:

A young Lieutenant in Sweeny's Division whose only bright spot is on his shoulders, and who thinks privates are an inferior race of beings—unworthy of an officer's association or regard—on hearing the thrilling notes of a piano accompanied with female voices, while promenading in Pulaski last week, and acting upon impulse, entered the gorgeously furnished mansion, took off his "kids" and "beaver" in the hall, stepped into the parlor, and there was astonished to find two humble soldiers enjoying the ladies' society. His astonishment grew into contempt as the damsels, instead of acknowledging his intrusion, smiled upon them, so he peremptorily ordered them to report to their regiments, adding that "privates should never force their company upon ladies."

The situation became embarrassing for the women's hearts were interested, and leaving the parlor, invited the soldiers accompany them. In the sitting room well furnished and grand all over, they remarked:

"Gentlemen, you are our guests, and we welcome you always, and treat you thus kindly, because we have brothers who are privates in the Southern army; and we know other ladies, our equals in position, will as warmly receive them. Our brothers are wrong, we all admit, but our sympathies nevertheless, are with them."

"But why this preference for us, ladies—do you not honor rank?"—asked one of the soldiers.

"In other days—days of peace—we did honor rank, perhaps, but since this cruel war exists in our country, we honor and love above all others, the men who endure most hardships, suffer most ills, brave most dangers, and exhibit most patriotism. And that officer who stoops to insult you, forgets that he is indebted to you and your comrades for his commission and rank."

All this time the Lieutenant sat "silent and alone" in the parlor, but finding himself left out "in the cold," he seized his hat and departed, wondering "if the d—l didn't get into women sometimes."

If, after reading these facts, he shall think I have done him any injustice whatever, I will give his name, company, and regiment in print to the world.

A Mormon priest named Nicholas made a nerve and bone all-healing salve, and thought he would experiment a little with it. He first cut off his dog's tail and applied some of the salve to the stump. A new tail grew out immediately. He then applied some to the piece of tail which he cut off, and a new dog grew out. He did not know which dog was which, at least Nicholas said so.

A schoolmaster in one of the neighboring towns, while on his morning walk, passed by the door of a neighbor, who was excavating a log for a pig-trough. "Why," said the schoolmaster "Mr. , have you not furniture enough yet?" "Yes," said the man, "enough for my own family, but I expect to board the schoolmaster this Winter, and am making preparations."

Solved at Last.—"What is the reason that men never kiss each other, while the ladies waste a world of kisses on feminine faces?" said the Captain to Gussie, the other day, up at Normal. Gussie cogitated a minute and then answered: "Because the men have something better to kiss, and the women have not." The Captain "saw it" immediately.

Didn't Pay.—A farmer's wife meeting one of her neighbors returning from market, inquired, "What do they pay for eggs at market, now?" "I got only eight cents a dozen for mine," he replied. "Eight cents a dozen!" said the indignant dame. "Well I shall not sell my eggs for eight cents—it don't pay for the wear and tear of the hen!"

Mrs. Lincoln appeared at the Capitol the other day attired in a black silk dress with sweeping skirts, and handsome furs. Mrs. Jefferson Davis, it is said, lately received many rich dresses and some superb articles of jewelry, sent to her by friends in Europe. It is gratifying to know that both the President's wives have got good clothes!

A California Judge recently, said from the bench, that "the rebels have been prospecting for hell, and struck it rich at Vicksburg and Gettysburg." To which the Denver News says: "It seems to be panning out pretty well, just now, over all their diggings."

Boasting is sometimes out of place. We were once amused at hearing a gentleman remark that he was a bachelor, and his father before him.
